Dear Stan:

Sorry I wasn't able to get with you on 8 November. I was hoping that we might lunch together but received a bust-off from your [redacted] STAT Secretary

I called from North Carolina on 7th (Monday) & the first suggested that I wait until my plane arrived next day and then call you. I told her that if you couldn't hand with me. I would like to make other plans and suggested that she call me back after contacting you. She agreed. I left my number with her. By eight that evening she had not called. I called you at your old quarters number. The line had been disconnected.

I only go into detail on this because she may be losing friends for you - those who don't understand the system when subordinates become over-protective.

I'll try again.

Best Wishes
